

11/12/2015

The Ministry of Finance in Greece ran a paid for recruitment advertisement in the Financial Times on the 3rd of December. We had an opportunity to re-run the advertisement the following week due to an additional space becoming available therefore we gave it a free repeat on the 10th of December without realising the date was void. The government did not order the placement of the advertisement for publication on the 10th of December and the free repeat published was not paid for.

Steve Playford

Global Director, Financial Times Career Management